We also incorporate crop rotation, silage tarps, and insect netting to help grow quality products and reduce overall pest infestation and disease. The customer understands and accepts the shared risks that crop quality, and quantity is heavily dependent upon seasonal weather, insects, and other natural occurrences. There is always the risk of a loss of crop or shortage due to natural occurrences. We as a farm promise to consistently provide high-quality products, implement 100% organic growing practices, and maintain the highest quality standards of workmanship and customer service to all of our customers.
